What is a half-life and how do you calculate a drug's half-life? The half-life of a drug is the time it takes for the amount of a drug's active substance in your body to reduce by half. This depends on how the body processes and gets rid of the drug. It can vary from a few hours to a few days, or sometimes weeks.

How to calculate count rate from half-life? So if the half-life is two days, four half-lives is 8 days. So suppose a sample has a count rate of 3,200 Becquerel (Bq) at the start, what its count rate would be after 8 days would be 1/16th of 3,200 Bq = 200 Bq.

What is the rule of half-life? In medicine, half-life is the time needed for half of the amount of medicine in a patient's body to be excreted or metabolized. The equation for half-life is T 1 / 2 = l n (2) ? , where T 1 / 2 is the half-life, and ? is the decay constant, which is a value specific to each chemical.

Q: How does Lewis define "holy war"? A: Lewis defines holy war as a religious obligation incumbent on all Muslims to fight for the defense and expansion of Islam. He contends that this concept is deeply rooted in Islamic tradition and has influenced Muslim history and politics for centuries.

Q: What is Lewis' view on contemporary terrorism? A: Lewis sees contemporary terrorism as a manifestation of a radical form of Islam that seeks to impose a strict Islamic regime on the world. He argues that this form of terrorism is not simply a political or economic phenomenon but is also driven by religious ideology.

Q: What are the implications of the crisis of Islam for the West? A: Lewis believes that the crisis of Islam poses serious challenges to Western societies, which are home to large Muslim populations. He argues that the West must understand the religious and ideological roots of terrorism to effectively combat it.

Q: What does Lewis suggest as a solution to the crisis of Islam? A: Lewis calls for a reformed Islam that rejects the doctrines of holy war and terrorism. He believes that Muslim leaders must reinterpret Islamic teachings in a way that is compatible with modern values of peace and tolerance.
