Is reloading worth it anymore? Depends on how often and much you shoot. If you just fire a few rounds occasionally, buying is far cheaper. Soldiers are trained to keep their eyes peeled for strange things in their surroundings that could represent a threat.

Why do snipers prefer bolt-action? The bolt-action is still common today among many sniper rifles, as the design has the potential for superior accuracy, reliability, reduced weight, and the ability to control loading over the faster rate of fire that all semi-automatic rifle alternatives allow.

Do US snipers load their own ammo? Snipers do not handload their own ammunition. They don't have the recipe. The maintainers of their rifle take care of that task for them. The US Military has a special unit called the Combat Marksmanship Competition team (lirc), and each member handloads their ammunition tailored specifically for their rifle.
