GDPR Accountability and Obligations

What is the GDPR Accountability Obligation?

The General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) places an obligation on organizations to demonstrate accountability for their processing of personal data. This means they must be able to prove that they have taken appropriate measures to comply with GDPR requirements.

Is Accountability a Specific Right Under the GDPR?

No, accountability is not explicitly identified as a right under the GDPR. However, it is a crucial principle that underpins the regulation's compliance requirements.

What are the Obligations of the GDPR?

GDPR outlines several obligations for organizations that process personal data, including:

- Implementing appropriate technical and organizational measures to protect data
- Obtaining consent from individuals for data processing
- Providing individuals with information about their data rights
- Notifying supervisory authorities of data breaches
- Cooperating with supervisory authorities

What are the Reporting Obligations Under GDPR?

Organizations must report data breaches to the relevant supervisory authority within 72 hours of becoming aware of the incident.

What are the Obligations of Data Controllers Under GDPR?

Data controllers have specific responsibilities under GDPR, such as:

- Determining the purposes and means of data processing
- Implementing appropriate security measures
- Ensuring that data is processed fairly and lawfully

What are the Information Provision Obligations of GDPR?

Organizations must provide individuals with clear and accessible information about:

- The purposes of data processing
- The categories of data being processed
- The rights of the individuals
- The recipients or categories of recipients of the data

What are the 7 Principles of GDPR?

- Lawfulness, fairness, and transparency
- Purpose limitation
- Data minimization
- Accuracy
- Storage limitation
- Integrity and confidentiality
- Accountability

How to Demonstrate Accountability in GDPR

Organizations can demonstrate accountability by:

- Implementing a comprehensive privacy policy

- Appointing a data protection officer
- Conducting regular data protection audits
- Maintaining records of data processing activities
- Training staff on data protection obligations

Who Has Accountability for Compliance with the GDPR?

- Owners of websites and mobile applications
- Online sellers
- Health care providers
