Choosing the Perfect Monologue for Auditions

Choosing the right monologue for an audition is crucial for showcasing your acting skills and making a lasting impression on casting directors. Here's a comprehensive guide to help you navigate the world of monologues:

Type of Monologue for Auditions:

- Classical: Excerpts from Shakespeare or other classic playwrights, known for their lyrical language and depth of character.
- Contemporary: Monologues from modern plays, which often explore current social issues or relatable themes.
- Self-written: Original monologues that reflect your unique voice and perspective.

Finding Good Monologues for Auditions:

- Play Anthologies: Collections of monologues from a variety of plays.
- Online Databases: Websites such as Backstage, Actors Access, and Monologue Bank offer a wide selection of monologues.
- Acting Workshops: Workshops often provide participants with opportunities to develop and perform monologues.

Best Monologue Ever:

The concept of the "best monologue ever" is subjective, as it depends on personal preferences and the specific casting requirement. However, some highly acclaimed monologues include:

- Hamlet's "To be or not to be" (Hamlet)
- Blanche DuBois' "I have always depended on the kindness of strangers" (A Streetcar Named Desire)
- Stanley Kowalski's "You're not a lady" (A Streetcar Named Desire)

Example of a Monologue in a Play:

"I loved her, your Grace, from my soul, with every faculty and power of my mind and heart. I loved her beyond my own welfare, beyond my own safety, beyond my own honor, beyond my own life itself." - Orlando, As You Like It

Monologues to Avoid for Auditions:

- Overused: Monologues that have been performed countless times, such as Hamlet's "To be or not to be."
- Inappropriate: Monologues that are not relevant to the role or the specific production.
- Too Long: Monologues that exceed two minutes in length.

The 5 Types of Monologues:

- Character Monologue: Reveals a character's inner thoughts and motivations.
- Narrative Monologue: Tells a story or anecdote.
- Agitational Monologue: Expresses a character's strong emotions or beliefs.
- Soliloquy: A monologue spoken by a character to himself or herself.
- Asides: Brief monologues spoken directly to the audience.

Should You Memorize Monologues for Auditions?

Yes, it is essential to memorize monologues for auditions. Memorization allows you to fully embody the character and deliver a confident performance.

How to Pick Monologues:

- Consider the casting requirements and the role you are auditioning for.
- Choose monologues that showcase your range and highlight your strengths as an actor.
- Select monologues that resonate with you and allow you to connect with the character on a personal level.

How Many Monologues Should an Actor Have?

It is recommended to have a repertoire of at least three to five monologues that are suitable for different casting requirements.

How to Pick an Acting Monologue:

- Read the monologue carefully and analyze the character's motivations and objectives.
- Practice the monologue multiple times to develop a deep understanding of the text.
- Find ways to personalize the monologue and make it your own.

What Do Casting Directors Look for in a Monologue?

- Technical Skills: Clear articulation, vocal control, and physical presence.
- Emotional Depth: Ability to convey complex emotions and connect with the audience.
- Character Development: A clear understanding of the character's journey and transformation.

How to Make a Monologue for an Audition:

- Identify a theme or experience that you want to explore.
- Develop a brief outline of the character and the situation they are in.

- Write the monologue in a concise and engaging manner, using vivid language and imagery.

What Makes a Perfect Monologue:

- A compelling character with a clear objective.
- Language that is both poetic and accessible.
- A structure that builds to a powerful climax.
- An ending that leaves the audience with something to contemplate.
