The Geopolitics of Emotion: Reshaping the World

In his seminal work, "The Geopolitics of Emotion," Dominique Moisi argues that emotions are profound forces that shape international relations. Cultures of fear, humiliation, and hope are reshaping global politics, leading to new challenges and opportunities.

Fear: A Driving Force of Polarization

Q: How does fear influence the geopolitical landscape?

A: Moisi asserts that fear of the other fuels polarization and nationalistic tendencies. When societies perceive threats to their security or identity, they may retreat into inward-looking policies that alienate outsiders. This fear-driven isolationism hinders cooperation and exacerbates international conflicts.

Humiliation: A Catalyst for Anger and Resentment

Q: What role does humiliation play in shaping global dynamics?

A: Humiliation, a profound sense of shame and disgrace, can lead to resentment and a desire for revenge. Moisi argues that countries that have experienced humiliation in the past (e.g., Germany after World War II) may adopt aggressive foreign policies to regain their dignity. This humiliation-driven aggression can destabilize international order.

Hope: A Source of Resilience and Progress

Q: How does hope contribute to global politics?

A: In contrast to fear and humiliation, hope generates a positive outlook and belief in the future. Societies that embrace hope are more likely to cooperate with others, invest in education, and foster a sense of optimism. Hope can act as a catalyst for social and economic progress, transforming societies and their relationships with the world.

Clash of Emotions: The Making of a New Global Order

Q: How do these different emotions interact in the global arena?

A: Moisi posits that fear, humiliation, and hope are in constant tension. Some countries may experience multiple emotions simultaneously, leading to complex and contradictory policies. The clash between these emotions shapes the global order, giving rise to new geopolitical alliances and rivalries.

The Future of Global Emotions

Q: What are the implications for the future of international relations?

A: Moisi concludes that understanding the geopolitics of emotion is crucial for navigating the complexities of an interconnected world. By acknowledging and managing these emotions, nations can mitigate polarization, resolve conflicts, and foster hope for a more cooperative and peaceful future. The geopolitics of emotion will continue to be a significant force in shaping the global landscape for years to come.

Why I Am a Salafi

Salafism is a school of thought within Sunni Islam that emphasises the adherence to the teachings of the early Muslims, the Salaf. Salafis believe that the best way to understand and practice Islam is to follow the example of the Prophet Muhammad (?) and his companions.

What is Salafism?

Salafism is not a sect or a new religion. It is a revival of the original teachings of Islam as they were understood and practiced by the early Muslims. Salafis believe that the Qur'an and the Sunnah of the Prophet Muhammad (?) are the only sources of Islamic law and that all other sources, such as personal opinion or cultural traditions, are unreliable and should be rejected.

Why I am a Salafi

There are many reasons why I am a Salafi. First, I believe that Salafism is the most authentic and pure form of Islam. It is based on the teachings of the Prophet Muhammad (?) and his companions, and it rejects all innovations and bid'ahs that have crept into Islam over the centuries.

Second, I believe that Salafism is the most logical and rational form of Islam. It is based on a clear understanding of the Qur'an and the Sunnah, and it rejects all forms of superstition and blind faith.

Third, I believe that Salafism is the most practical and effective form of Islam. It provides clear guidance on how to live a good and fulfilling life in accordance with the teachings of the Prophet Muhammad (?).

Conclusion

Salafism is not a radical or extremist form of Islam. It is a peaceful and moderate school of thought that is based on the teachings of the Prophet Muhammad (?). Salafis believe that the best way to understand and practice Islam is to follow the example of the early Muslims, and they reject all innovations and bid'ahs that have crept into Islam over the centuries.
