How much does a King Air B200 cost?

What is the difference between King Air 200 and B200? The B200 also utilizes an electro-hydraulic gear retraction system, rather than the 200's electrically actuated gear that dated back to the Twin Bonanza. Early, unmodified 200s are good for 270 KTAS or more while the B200 can top out around 290 KTAS; 200s modified with upgraded engines can exceed 300 KTAS.

What is the hourly rate for King Air B200? King Air B200 Private Charter Flights and Prices One of the fastest aircraft with a lengthy range, the King Air B200 quickly became one of the top jets in its class and now flies in over 100 countries worldwide. The average hourly rental rate of the King Air B200 is around 2,000 USD per hour.

How much does it cost to charter a King Air B200? The average cost to charter a Beechcraft King Air B200 is around $1,760 per hour. For charter rates and availability of the Beechcraft King Air B200, please submit the flight request form, or call our agents 24/7 at +1 (212) 840 8000.

Does a King Air 200 require two pilots? Most King Air 200 models are configured for 7 full seats plus 1 lavatory seat, but some have 8 full seats plus 1 lavatory seat. Although the King Air 200 is certified for single-pilot flights, all King Air 200s that are chartered through Air Charter Advisors are flown with two pilots.

Why buy a King Air over a jet? Customers who buy a King Air 200 are often focused on shorter trips, as well as noise-sensitive and smaller airports. The aircraft itself is easy to maneuver, and while it flies at a slower speeds compared to jet-engine aircraft, it's more fuel conscious.
