Exterior

The most noticeable change to the 2017 Sandero Stepway is its redesigned exterior. The front end features a new grille, headlights, and bumper, giving the car a more aggressive stance. The side profile remains largely unchanged, but the rear gets a new set of taillights and a redesigned bumper. Overall, the Stepway looks more muscular and stylish than its predecessor.

Interior

Inside, the Stepway receives a number of updates, including a new dashboard, steering wheel, and seats. The dashboard is now more modern and user-friendly, with a large touchscreen display that houses the infotainment system. The steering wheel is now leather-wrapped and features audio controls. The seats are more supportive and comfortable, making long journeys less tiresome.

Engine

The 2017 Sandero Stepway is available with a choice of two petrol engines: a 0.9-liter three-cylinder and a 1.2-liter four-cylinder. Both engines are relatively fuel-efficient, with the 0.9-liter returning up to 58.9 mpg and the 1.2-liter returning up to 52.3 mpg.

On the road, the Sandero Stepway is a surprisingly capable performer. The steering is light and responsive, and the car handles well around corners. The suspension is also well-tuned, providing a comfortable ride even on rough roads. The engines provide adequate power for most driving situations, but they can feel a bit sluggish when overtaking.

Conclusion

Overall, the 2017 Dacia Sandero Stepway is a significant improvement over its predecessor. It features a more rugged exterior, a more modern interior, and a more capable driving experience. For the price, it's hard to find a better value in a new car.
