"Summer of the Seventeenth Doll": Scripting the Unforgettable

Synopsis:

"Summer of the Seventeenth Doll" is an iconic Australian play written by Ray Lawler in 1955. It follows the lives of two itinerant cane cutters, Barney and Roo, and their annual visit to the Palm Island plantation. This year, however, their reunion with their long-time girlfriends, Emma and Olive, is fraught with change and heartache.

Dramatic Structure:

The play is divided into three acts and nine scenes, each capturing a different phase in the characters' relationships. The script masterfully employs flashbacks, foreshadowing, and dialogue to trace the emotional journey of its protagonists. It delves into themes of loneliness, unfulfilled dreams, and the inevitability of time's passage.

Character Development:

Lawler's characters are deeply flawed and relatable. Barney, the charismatic outsider, struggles with his inability to settle down. Roo, the introspective dreamer, faces the harsh realities of life. Emma, the pragmatic and unfulfilled wife, yearns for something more. Olive, the flamboyant and vulnerable actress, serves as a catalyst for change.

Dialogue and Imagery:

The script is characterized by its evocative dialogue and vivid imagery. The language of the characters reflects their working-class backgrounds and captures the sights, sounds, and smells of the sugarcane plantation. Lawler's use of metaphors and symbolism creates a rich tapestry that enhances the play's emotional impact.

Adaptability and Legacy:

"Summer of the Seventeenth Doll" has been widely adapted for film and television. The original production in 1955 starred John Cazabon, Ray Barrett, Patricia Kennedy, and Judith Stott. It has since become a classic of Australian theater, regularly performed around the world. The script continues to resonate with audiences, exploring universal themes of identity, loss, and the search for belonging.
