What is armor but a cage that moves with you? What is armor after all but a cage that moves with you? All the worst things that happened to other women because they were women could happen to you because you were a woman. Even if you weren't killed, something in you was, your sense of freedom, equality, confidence.

Why is mansplaining bad? "Mansplaining can lead to employees feeling that they are undervalued or not valued in their workplace, or as though they don't belong – even if there was no negative intent on the part of the instigator."

What is an example of mansplaining? It is a behavior traditionally gender socialized by men that can be described as talking down to women, or over or under explaining when communicating with women. Have you heard or said this before? "I will explain it to you later, you don't understand." "This is really complex, let me explain”....

What is the difference between mansplaining and explaining? While a man who is explaining might wait to be asked a question, a mansplaining man will jump in with answers before anyone has expressed a need for them. While a man who is explaining might ask about the other person's qualifications or familiarity, a mansplaining man assumes that the other person is starting at zero.

Writing Magic: Creating Stories That Fly, with Gail Carson Levine

In a world where stories have the power to transport, ignite, and inspire, Gail Carson Levine has emerged as a master storyteller. Her award-winning books, such as "Ella Enchanted" and "The Two Princesses of Bamarre," have captivated generations of readers and left an indelible mark on the literary landscape.

What is your secret to writing stories that resonate so deeply with readers?

"I believe in the power of wonder and imagination," Levine says. "When I write, I try to create stories that allow readers to escape, dream, and see the world through a new lens."

How do you develop characters that readers can connect with?

"I draw inspiration from people I observe and the characters I encounter in books and movies," Levine explains. "I strive to create characters who are flawed, relatable, and driven by their own unique motivations."

What advice would you give to aspiring writers who want to craft stories that fly?

"Read widely and study great literature," Levine emphasizes. "Experiment with different genres and styles to find your voice. And most importantly, don't be afraid to let your imagination soar."

How do you overcome writer's block and stay motivated?

"Writer's block is a common obstacle, but I've learned to embrace it as an opportunity to reflect and explore new ideas," Levine says. "I also find inspiration by taking breaks, reading, and connecting with other writers."

What is the most rewarding aspect of being a storyteller?

"The most rewarding part is receiving letters from readers who share how my stories have touched their lives," Levine says. "Knowing that I've made a difference through words is truly humbling and fulfilling."
