Does Victor agree to listen to the creature's tale? If Victor will give him that one thing, he will go away permanently. Victor tells himself that he will try to do whatever the monster asks, and he agrees to listen to the monster's story and request.

Who is telling this part of the story Frankenstein Quizlet? Who is telling this part of the story? Who is it being told to? Victor Frankenstein is telling the story and it is being told to Robert Walton.

What is Captain Walton's mission? Robert Walton is the narrator who writes these letters to his sister on his expedition to discover the North Pole. The arctic sea captain is ambitious and focuses his life on discovery. On his journey, he finds Victor Frankenstein, a scientist obsessed with creating life.

Why does the captain want to sail to the North Pole in Frankenstein? Answer and Explanation: Walton feels very excited about traveling to the North Pole. In his letter to his sister he explains that he wishes to visit 'the country of eternal light' to prove that he could accomplish things and visit places unknown to man.

Why does Victor destroy the female monster? Why does Frankenstein destroy the Monster's female companion? Frankenstein decides that he has a moral duty to destroy the female companion he is making for the Monster. He realizes that even if the Monster is not innately evil, he can't be sure the female companion won't turn out to be evil.

Why does Victor hate the creature? While Victor initially created the creature to resolve the neglect he received as a child, his over-ambitiousness ultimately prevents him from empathizing with his creation, so he subsequently abandons it. Furthermore, Victor abandons his creation because of his realization of what the creature personifies.

What is the creature's reaction upon Victor's death? At the end of Frankenstein, Victor Frankenstein dies wishing that he could destroy the Monster he created. The Monster visits Frankenstein's body. He tells Walton that he regrets the murders he has committed and that he intends to commit suicide.

Who is Frankenstein's closest friend? Henry is Victor's best friend who looks after him when he is ill and accompanies him to England. Henry's purpose in the novel is to show what Victor could have been had he not been influenced by ambition and the desire for discovery - in that sense he is Victor's opposite.

Why does Frankenstein create the monster? Victor creates the monster in hopes of achieving glory and remembrance through his contributions to scientific advancement. However, he does not ever consider the many implications involved with the creation of life.

What is letter 4 about in Frankenstein? Summary: Letter 4 All but one of the dogs drawing the sledge is dead, and the man on the sledge—not the man seen the night before—is emaciated, weak, and starving. Despite his condition, the man refuses to board the ship until Walton tells him that it is heading north.

How is Walton a foil to Victor? In his ultimate decision to terminate his treacherous pursuit, Walton serves as a foil (someone whose traits or actions contrast with, and thereby highlight, those of another character) to Victor, either not obsessive enough to risk almost-certain death or not courageous enough to allow his passion to drive him.

What does the monster do after Victor dies? Walton writes that Victor has died, and that he has seen Victor's creation. The monster came to pay respects to Victor, and he told Walton that, now that Victor is gone, he plans to build a funeral pyre for himself and complete suicide. He jumps out of the window and onto an ice raft, and he floats away.

Why does Victor decide to tell Walton his horrifying story? The man agrees to tell his story because he notices that Walton is seeking knowledge as Victor himself once did. Victor hopes that Walton's seeking of knowledge will not lead to disaster as it did for Victor.

What does Walton prefer more than wealth? My life might have been passed in ease and luxury; but I preferred glory to every enticement that wealth placed in my path. Walton writes these lines to his sister as he describes his motivation for his voyage of exploration, and his justification for why he feels he deserves to be successful.

What does Walton lack? What does Walton Lack? What does he say this thing would do for him? He lacks a friend. He wants a friend to encourage him and cheer him up when he's discouraged.

Why does Victor follow the creature and listen to his story? Curiosity, compassion, duty and a desire to listen to an explanation behind the murder of William provokes Victor to follow the creature and listen to his story.

What does Victor agree to? Victor finally agrees to create a companion for the monster to protect others from his wrath. The monster threatens that he will be monitoring Victor's progress.

How does the creature persuade Victor to listen to his story? Victor is disgusted with the creature, but agrees to listen because the creature argues so persuasively the Victor can not help but hear. The creature explains that he is Victor's creation and therefore what he is, is because of Victor's making.

Why doesn't Victor want to tell his listener how he made the monster? Final answer: The reason Victor doesn't tell readers/listeners about the secret he knows is to create suspense and maintain reader engagement. Not revealing the secret adds tension and anticipation to the story. Additionally, it allows the author to use the secret as a plot device to drive the narrative forward.
