Then do the same with the areas of the painting in the light, but with lighter hues.

When painting a landscape, which should be painted first? Some painters recommend starting a landscape painting by highlighting the darkest and lightest areas first. Paint wisps of white in the sky for clouds, for example, while highlighting solid objects — like mountains or trees — with darker colors.

What is the most common acrylic painting technique? Wet brush on dry canvas — This is probably the most traditional paint brush technique. It's much easier and faster to tape off trim than to tape off your walls. And you definitely don't want the hassle of taping them both.

Should you paint or landscape first? Exterior painting is best done before other outdoor projects – If you have landscaping or gardening work around the house, why not get the painting done first so you don't have to worry about working around new plants or keeping paint out of fresh mulch?

What is the difference between oil and acrylic painting techniques? Try recreating some of your favorite characters, or be bold and invent one of your own.

What do you put on before acrylic painting? Priming is the process of creating a barrier between the canvas and the paint. It's typically done by applying layers of acrylic gesso, clear acrylic medium, or oil primer. Prepping your canvas makes it less absorbent, helps your paint sit better on the surface, and protects your canvas from natural corrosion.

Is acrylic or oil paint easier for beginners? Acrylic Pros: You can paint on anything. This is one of the key things that make acrylics a great medium to start with when beginning to learn to paint. This means that each layer of paint should be progressively more flexible, thicker and slow drying than the one below it.
