What version does Awana use? Our Awana club uses the King James version (KJV) of the Bible for all lessons and memory verses. If your child has a KJV Bible of their own, they should bring it along. They will need to have one for learning verses each week at home.

What are the levels for Awana? AWANA clubs are available for preschool age children (3-year-old, potty-trained), Kindergarten-Second Grade, Third-Sixth Grade, Middle School and High School. A small group for parents of young kids runs at the same time of AWANA, bi-weekly.

How to start an Awana club? Start small and personal, six to eight people. Look for strong people, who love children, and start talking to them; cast the vision of what Awana can be. Take them out to lunch. Once you've identified your key leaders (six to eight depending on the size of the church and community), begin to develop them.

How long is Awana? The program usually runs for one-and-a-half to two hours and involves a rotation through three segments: Small Group Time allows kids to break into age-specific groups where they dive into biblical truth with their leaders, discuss the meaning and application of Scripture, and share verses they've memorized.

What version of the Bible does Awanas use? By making our curriculum available with the ESV Bible, we are committed to expanding our opportunities to serve and connect with churches across denominational lines.” Awana is a not-for-profit ministry that helps churches and parents raise children and youth to know, love, and serve Christ.
