The SCA Coffee Cuppers Handbook: A Comprehensive Guide to Coffee Evaluation

Introduction:

The Specialty Coffee Association (SCA) Coffee Cuppers Handbook is an industry-leading resource for coffee professionals and enthusiasts who assess and describe the sensory characteristics of coffee. This comprehensive guide provides a standardized framework for evaluating coffee based on aroma, flavor, body, and other sensory attributes.

Question: What are the key elements of the SCA coffee cupping process?

Answer: The SCA cupping process involves a structured tasting and evaluation of brewed coffee. It involves assessing the coffee's aroma, flavor, acidity, body, sweetness, and aftertaste. Cuppers also note any defects or off-flavors that may be present.

Question: How is aroma evaluated in coffee cupping?

Answer: Aroma is the first sensory attribute evaluated during cupping. Cuppers describe the coffee's aroma using descriptors such as floral, fruity, earthy, or spicy. They note the intensity of the aroma and any other specific characteristics that are noticeable.

Question: What is the difference between acidity and bitterness in coffee? _____

Answer: Acidity in coffee refers to its bright and lively taste, while bitterness is an unpleasant, harsh sensation in the mouth. Cuppers assess the coffee's balance of acidity and bitterness, as well as the type of acidity present (e.g., citrusy, malic, or phosphoric).

Question: How is body assessed in coffee cupping?

Answer: Body refers to the weight and texture of the brewed coffee in the mouth. Cuppers describe the coffee's body as thin, medium, or full. They also note any tactile sensations, such as creaminess or astringency.

Conclusion:

The SCA Coffee Cuppers Handbook provides a comprehensive and standardized approach to coffee evaluation. By following its guidelines, cuppers can accurately describe the sensory characteristics of coffee and make informed judgments about its quality and flavor profile. This guide is an essential tool for coffee professionals who strive to enhance their sensory evaluation skills and contribute to the advancement of the coffee industry.
