The process of reducing friction between moving/sliding surfaces, by the introduction of lubricants in between them, is called lubrication.

What is this lubricants? Definition. Lubricant is a substance which is used to control (more often to reduce) friction and wear of the surfaces in a contact of the bodies in relative motion [1]. Depending on its nature, lubricants are also used to eliminate heat and wear debris, supply additives into the contact, transmit power, protect, seal.

What do you mean by lubrication? Lubrication is the control of friction and wear by the introduction of a friction-reducing film between moving surfaces in contact. The lubricant used can be a fluid, solid, or plastic substance. Many different substances can be used to lubricate a surface.

What are called lubricants? Lubricants are substances that help reduce friction between surfaces that come into contact with each other and ultimately reduce the heat generated when the surfaces are in motion.

Should you lube yes or no? Lubricants have pros and cons. Water-based ones are good for sensitive skin. Silicone and oil-based ones last longer but can damage toys and condoms. Natural options like olive oil can be used but also come with potential risks.
