The Train to Crystal City: FDR's Secret Prisoner Exchange Program and America's Only Family Internment Camp During World War II

Q: What was the Train to Crystal City? A: The Train to Crystal City refers to a secret prisoner exchange program initiated by President Franklin D. Roosevelt during World War II. The program involved the exchange of American citizens interned in Nazi Germany for German nationals interned in the United States.

Q: Where was the Crystal City internment camp located? A: Crystal City internment camp was located in Crystal City, Texas. It was the only family internment camp in the United States during World War II, housing primarily German Americans and Italian Americans.

Q: What was the purpose of the prisoner exchange program? A: The goal of the program was to return American citizens to the United States and secure the release of German nationals who could provide valuable information or be used as hostages.

Q: How many people were interned at Crystal City? A: Crystal City internment camp held approximately 3,300 people, including women and children. The majority of internees were German nationals, but there were also individuals of other nationalities.

Q: What were the conditions like at Crystal City? A: Living conditions at Crystal City were generally poor, with overcrowded barracks, inadequate sanitation, and limited access to healthcare. However, internees were allowed to organize their own community activities, including schools and newspapers.
