Download Complete File

What is the main message of the breadwinner? The main message from The Breadwinner is that despite the fact that some women and girls are given no voice and no rights, they are just as capable and resourceful (if not more so) as their male counterparts.

Why was Parvana scared to go shopping alone? Why did the Talib hit Parvana with the stick for shopping? Parvana was scared to shop alone as women were not supposed to shop without a male escort. Men were supposed to do all the shopping. Shopkeepers could be beaten for serving women in their shops.

What causes Parvana to change her feelings about her hair? Weera ask Parvana to cut her hair so she can pose as a boy, Parvana discovers that whereas her long hair trapped her, having her hair cut short frees her. With her hair short, Parvana can see a future that offers her agency and choice, something she didn't get with long hair that she was required to cover.

Why did Homa leave Mazar-e-Sharif? Homa said; "I escaped from Mazare-Sharif just after the Taliban captured the city." "They went from house to house, looking for enemies. They came to my house. They came right inside! They grabbed my father and my brother and took them outside.

Why did Parvana's dad go to jail? Taliban soldiers enter her house and arrest her father for having a foreign education. Parvana and her mother go to the local jail and beg for her father to be freed, but the guards beat them for being so outspoken. Soon after, her mother becomes depressed and will not move from her toshak (thin mattress).

Why is Nooria mean to Parvana? For Nooria, the responsibility of being the eldest means she must often put aside her personal desires for the welfare of her family, which sometimes causes tension between her and Parvana. Meanwhile, Parvana develops a new respect for Nooria as she takes on greater responsibilities herself.

What is Shauzia's secret? Shauzia leads Parvana to a low wall to share a secret: she's saving money so she can escape. She explains that she'll stay until next spring, and she insists that she wants to still be a boy then—if she goes back to being a girl, she'll be stuck at home.

Why is Nooria so relieved to see their guest? When Parvana returns with just tea and rice, Nooria is unimpressed. Mrs. Weera arrives, and Nooria feels massive relief because she can "take some of the responsibility off her shoulders" (5.35).

Why does Parvana feel lonely? Though they have neighbors in the part of the building that's still standing, Father insists they keep their distance. The Taliban encourages neighbors to spy on each other. Because of this, Parvana is lonely.

What do flowers symbolize in The Breadwinner? These flowers seem to symbolize the uncertain future that Parvana and her family face; they may be wilting on the surface, but their roots are strong, and this will help them survive. Another major symbol in the book is Parvana's shalwar kameez.

What happened to Parvana at the end? By the end of the novel, Parvana is reunited with her father, only to realize that the rest of her family is in danger because the Taliban took over the area they were travelling to for her older sister's wedding. The novel ends with Parvana and her father setting out to search for their family.

How is Parvana mature? Thesis Statement: Throughout Deborah Ellis's The Breadwinner, Parvana matures from a timid and fearful child into a resilient and persuasive adult. This is evident through her courage in facing danger, her ability to stand up for her beliefs, and her skill in convincing people to help her family.

Why does Nooria decide to marry a man she hardly knows? Why did Nooria agree to marry the man chosen for her? Nooria knew the family of the man chosen to marry her. If she married him, she could go to Mazar-e-Sharif where the Taliban was not in control and she could attend school and not have to wear a burqa. 11.

Does Nooria want to get married? Parvana doesn't understand why Nooria wants to marry someone she's never met. Oh Parvana, you are such a worrywart—of course Nooria's met her fiancé; he was their neighbor years ago. Plus Nooria is pretty psyched for her new life.

Why did Parvana and the woman wait until dark before returning home? The woman is terrified and she isn't wearing a burqa. Parvana waits until dark to dash home, hoping that the Taliban won't find them. They make it.

Is Parvana a true story? Based on the true-life stories of women in Afghan refugee camps, the Parvana series is the inspiring story of Parvana, a young girl growing up in Afghanistan, as she struggles to make a life for herself and her family under the harsh rule of the Taliban.

How old is Nooria? Nooria is Parvana's 17-year-old sister. Nooria and Parvana's relationship is strained because of their age difference and because Nooria seems, to Parvana, to be a fully-fledged adult—and a beautiful one at that.

How old is Shauzia in Mud City? Mud City, the final volume in Deborah Ellis's Afghan trilogy, follows 14-year-old Shauzia, Parvana's best friend, into a refugee camp in Pakistan. Having fled an arranged marriage in Kabul, Shauzia becomes little more than a gopher for Mrs.

Why is Nooria relieved to see Mrs Weera? Weera throws off her burqa and tells Nooria that the Taliban chased Parvana out of the market. Nooria looks relieved to see Mrs. Weera, an adult to take on some responsibility.

Why do Nooria and her mother clean all the time? Nooria and Mother are cleaning, which they do a lot since there isn't much else for them to fill their time with. They need Parvana to fetch some water because the tank is empty, which is pretty bad news as far as Parvana is concerned since it means six trips with the water bucket to the water tap.

Why is Mrs Weera moving in with Parvana's family? Weera decides to move in with Parvana and her family so that she and Parvana's mother can start a magazine. She helps to the house around for the better, keeping Mother happy and the children upbeat because they now go outside with Parvana when she fetches water.

What is the main idea of the book The Breadwinner? The Breadwinner tells the story of what a person can do when there are seemingly no options. Though she often says she wants to be a normal kid, Parvana finds the strength and courage to leave her home, work for her family, and even risk her own life.

What is the theme of The Breadwinner movie? At its heart, The Breadwinner is a testament to the power of family and friendship.

What is the purpose of breadwinner? A breadwinner is a colloquial term for the primary or sole income earner in a household. Breadwinners, by contributing the largest portion of household income, generally cover most household expenses and financially support their dependents.

What is the point of view of The Breadwinner? Third Person (Limited Omniscient)

The Archaeology of Mediterranean Landscapes: Human-Environment Interaction from the Neolithic to the Roman Period

Introduction

The Mediterranean region has witnessed a rich human history, with civilizations flourishing amidst its diverse and dynamic landscapes. Archaeological research has illuminated the profound relationship between humans and their environment in this area over millennia. This article explores key questions and answers regarding this human-environment interplay during the Neolithic to the Roman period.

1. How did the Neolithic Revolution transform the Mediterranean landscape?

The Neolithic Revolution, around 10,000 BCE, marked a significant shift from hunting and gathering to agriculture. Populations settled in permanent settlements, clearing forests for farming and grazing. This led to deforestation, soil erosion, and the rise of domesticated plants and animals.

2. How did the emergence of urbanization affect the environment?

As settlements grew into cities, particularly during the Bronze Age, human impact on the landscape intensified. Urbanization increased demand for resources, resulting in deforestation, water shortages, and pollution. Cities also created waste disposal challenges, affecting soil and water quality.

3. How did Greek and Roman agricultural practices shape the Mediterranean landscape?

Greek and Roman civilizations developed sophisticated agricultural techniques, including the use of irrigation and terracing. These practices allowed for increased crop production and a more efficient use of water. However, deforestation for agriculture led to soil erosion, particularly on hillsides.

4. How did trade and travel influence the human-environment relationship?

Trade and travel facilitated the exchange of goods, ideas, and technologies. The introduction of new crops and livestock led to changes in local ecosystems. Trade routes also contributed to the movement of people and pests, potentially affecting human health and the spread of diseases.

5. How did the fall of the Roman Empire impact the Mediterranean landscape?

The collapse of the Roman Empire in the 5th century CE led to a decline in urbanization and agriculture. Abandoned settlements and fields reverted to forests, and human impact on the landscape decreased. This allowed for the partial recovery of natural ecosystems and a reduction in soil erosion.

Conclusion

The archaeology of Mediterranean landscapes reveals a complex and dynamic relationship between humans and their environment. From the Neolithic Revolution to the Roman period, human activities have had a profound impact on the landscapes of this region. Understanding this interplay is essential for appreciating the long-term environmental consequences of human actions and the importance of sustainable practices.

How credible is the Oxford dictionary? The Oxford English Dictionary (OED) is widely accepted as the most complete record of the English language ever assembled. Unlike typical language dictionaries, which only define words in terms of their current uses and meanings, the OED is a historical dictionary.

The Economic Geology of Iran: Mineral Deposits and Natural Resources

Springer Geology

Introduction

Iran boasts a rich and diverse geological landscape, endowing it with a vast array of mineral deposits and natural resources. The Economic Geology of Iran provides a comprehensive overview of the geological setting, occurrences, and economic implications of these resources.

Question 1: What are the major mineral deposits found in Iran?

Answer: Iran possesses significant reserves of copper, gold, lead, zinc, iron, and chromium. Notable copper deposits include the Sungun porphyry copper deposit and the Sar Cheshmeh copper complex. Gold is found in the Takab-Zanjan gold belt and in the Lut desert. Lead, zinc, and iron deposits are widespread throughout the country, while chromium is primarily concentrated in the ophiolitic terrains of eastern Iran.

Question 2: What type of gemstone deposits are present in Iran?

Answer: Iran is renowned for its precious and semiprecious gemstones. Emerald deposits occur in the Kerman province, while ruby and sapphire are found in the Kuh-e-Binan area. Turquoise, agate, and malachite are also mined in various locations.

Question 3: How extensive are Iran's oil and gas reserves?

Answer: Iran holds the world's fourth-largest proven oil reserves and the second-largest proven natural gas reserves. The major oil and gas fields are located in the Persian Gulf and the Caspian Sea. Iran's oil industry is a significant contributor to its economy and plays a crucial role in the global oil market.

Question 4: What are the main non-metallic mineral resources of Iran?

Answer: Iran possesses abundant non-metallic minerals, including limestone, gypsum, salt, and bentonite. Limestone is used in cement production, while gypsum is employed in the construction industry. Salt is obtained from evaporite deposits and is primarily used in the food and chemical industries. Bentonite has various industrial applications, including oil drilling and cosmetics.

Question 5: What is the significance of the Economic Geology of Iran?

Answer: Understanding the economic geology of Iran is essential for assessing the country's mineral and natural resource potential. It provides insights into the geological processes responsible for deposit formation, the distribution and characteristics of these deposits, and their potential impact on economic development. The information presented in this Springer Geology publication serves as a valuable resource for geologists, mining engineers, and policymakers involved in the exploration, exploitation, and management of Iran's mineral wealth.
