Question 1: Explain the concept of modulation.

Answer: Modulation is the process of converting an information-bearing signal into a form suitable for transmission over a communication channel. It involves varying the characteristics of a carrier signal, such as its amplitude, frequency, or phase, to encode the original signal.

Question 2: Describe the different types of modulation techniques.

Answer: Common modulation techniques include amplitude modulation (AM), frequency modulation (FM), and phase modulation (PM). AM varies the amplitude of the carrier signal, FM varies its frequency, and PM varies its phase. Each technique offers different advantages and disadvantages, depending on the specific communication system requirements.
