The Compleat Meadmaker: Frequently Asked Questions

What is mead? Mead is an alcoholic beverage made by fermenting honey with water. It is one of the oldest alcoholic beverages in the world, dating back to at least 7000 BC. Mead is typically sweet, with a honeyed flavor. It can be still or sparkling, and can range in alcohol content from 5% to 20% ABV.

How is mead made? Mead is made by combining honey, water, and yeast. The honey is dissolved in the water, and the yeast is added to ferment the honey. The fermentation process takes several weeks or months, and during this time the yeast converts the honey's sugars into alcohol.

What are the different types of mead? There are many different types of mead, each with its own unique flavor. Some of the most common types of mead include:

- Traditional mead: This type of mead is made with only honey, water, and yeast. It is typically sweet, with a honeyed flavor.
- Metheglin: This type of mead is made with honey, water, yeast, and spices. The spices can vary, but common spices used in metheglin include cinnamon, cloves, and ginger.
- Melomel: This type of mead is made with honey, water, yeast, and fruit. The fruit can vary, but common fruits used in melomel include apples, berries, and peaches.
- Sack mead: This type of mead is made with honey, water, yeast, and hops. It is similar to beer in flavor, but has a higher alcohol content.

How do I make mead? Making mead is a relatively simple process. The following is a basic recipe for traditional mead:

- 1 gallon of water
- 3 pounds of honey
- 1 packet of yeast

1. Dissolve the honey in the water.
2. Bring the honey water to a boil.
3. Remove the honey water from the heat and let it cool to room temperature.
4. Add the yeast to the honey water and stir well.
5. Pour the honey water into a clean glass container and seal it with a fermentation lock.
6. Store the mead in a cool, dark place for several weeks or months.
7. Once the mead has finished fermenting, bottle it and allow it to age for at least a month before drinking.

Where can I buy mead? Mead can be purchased at many liquor stores and online retailers. You can also find mead at some breweries and wineries.
