What images does the filmmaker use to establish the setting? Long Shot The long shot, also known as the wide shot, is often times used as an establishing shot in a film, as it normally sets the scene and the character's place within it. This type of camera shot, shows the full length of the subject while also including a large amount of the surrounding area of the film setting.

How does the film portray the boss which is a little different from the book? The film portrays the boss as a much more sympathetic character than in the book. He is shown to be kind and understanding towards George and Lennie, and he is much less hostile and intimidating.

What are two things George wants Lennie to remember? What two things does George want Lennie to remember? George wants Lennie to remember to not say anything when they talk to the boss and to return to this campsite if he gets into trouble.

What information about Lennie's character is revealed to the reader through George's discovery of the dead mouse in Lennie's pocket? One of Lennie's fixations is soft things, so keeping the mouse in his pocket means he always has something soft to touch. The dead mouse symbolizes Lennie's lack of understanding of basic societal rules and acceptable behaviors. It also symbolizes Lennie's lack of understanding of death.

What does the flashback show in the movie of Mice and Men? The film adaptation of "Of Mice and Men" is a flashback because it begins with George and Lennie on the run and ends with George's decision to end Lennie's life. By using flashbacks, the filmmakers are able to present the story in a more visual and dramatic way.

What do you notice about the setting of the story? It includes elements such as place, time, and weather. The setting is more important in some stories than in others. Sometimes, the setting provides details about the mood and tone of the story. ?For example?, a story set in an old house might be filled with suspense and horror.

How accurate is the movie Of Mice and Men? The similarity between the book and the film “Of Mice and Men” is most evident. Even so, there are a few differences, some insignificant and others crucial. However, in the majority of the scenes, the dialogs are taken literally from the book.

What is the point of the movie Of Mice and Men? The film explores themes of discrimination, loneliness, and the American Dream, as well as the desire for a place to call home. Of Mice and Men took part in the 1992 Cannes Film Festival, where Sinise was nominated for the Palme d'Or award, given to the director of the best-featured film.

What's the difference between the book and the movie Of Mice and Men? The Of Mice and Men film focuses on Lennie's intellectual disability rather than his mental illness, forgoing hallucinations like Aunt Clara and the rabbit featured in the book. The character of Curley's wife is portrayed as more sympathetic in the film, making her death appear more tragic and less deserving.

What would Aunt Clara always give to Lennie when he was little? Aunt Clara used to give Lennie mice to pet. Lennie loved the mice because they were soft. However, Aunt Clara had to stop giving them to him because he would accidentally kill them from petting them too hard.

What is Carlson's personality? Carlson has a bold, commanding presence. Though he seems well-mannered and friendly in his initial appearance in the novella, he is extremely blunt and not afraid to speak his mind, which is often at the expense of other characters' feelings.

Who is the only man to understand the bond between Lennie and George? Slim is greatly respected by many of the characters and is the only character whom Curley treats with respect. His insight, intuition, kindness and natural authority draw the other ranch hands automatically towards him, and he is significantly the only character to fully understand the bond between George and Lennie.

Why did Curley wear a glove full of vaseline? Monty J Heying joe wrote: "The Vaseline glove is literal, it is simply used to keep his hand soft for beating his wife, as beating her with a soft hand shows a ironic kindness." There is nothing in the text about Curley beating or even being rough with his wife. She had no fear of him.

Who is ultimately responsible for Lennie's death? George is one of the most culpable as he was partly responsible for taking care of Lennie and was the person who kills Lennie.

What caused Lennie's death? When George finds Lennie, he tells him to look out over the land and picture the farm that they are going to have. He tells him that they have each other, that he isn't mad at him and he never was. With good thoughts in Lennie's mind, George pulls the trigger, killing Lennie and their dream along with him.

What is foreshadowed in mice and men? The death of Lennie George's shooting of Lennie is foreshadowed throughout Of Mice and Men . In Section 2, Slim—who is consistently presented as a humane, trustworthy character—introduces the idea that any creature too weak to survive in a hard world must be killed.

What does the dead mouse symbolize in mice and men? In Of Mice and Men, Lennie is fascinated by soft things, and the dead mouse he carries symbolizes his childlike innocence and lack of understanding of his own strength.

Why is Lennie obsessed with dead mice? Answer and Explanation: Lennie has the dead mouse because it is soft, and he likes to pet soft things. The mouse was originally alive, but it bit him, so he killed it. However, he refuses to accept the mouse is gone, so he keeps it in his pocket.

What is the central idea of the story? Theme is the main or central idea in a literary work. It is the unifying element of a story. A theme is not a summary of characters or events. Rather, it is the controlling idea or central insight of the story.

What is the climax of the story? The CLIMAX of the story is when the CONFLICT of the PLOT is resolved. It is often the most exciting part of the story: when the hero saves the princess, discovers the buried treasure, or slays the dragon. Imagine when you read a story that you are climbing up a mountainside. The CLIMAX is the mountain peak.

What is the plot of the story? A plot is the sequence of main events in a story. These events generally take place in a specific order, which gives the story a specific structure. This structure can be divided into five basic elements: Exposition, rising action, climax, falling action and the resolution.

How does a film establish the setting? It is generally a long or extreme-long shot at the beginning of a scene indicating where, and sometimes when, the remainder of the scene takes place. An opening shot of the Brooklyn Bridge establishes the setting and trajectory of the film Saturday Night Fever.
