The Boy Next Door: A Q&A with Meg Cabot

1. What was the inspiration behind writing "The Boy Next Door"?

Meg Cabot: The idea came to me when I was watching a TV show about a young woman who moves into a new apartment and meets the boy next door. I thought it would be fun to write a book about a similar situation, but with a twist. In my book, the boy next door is a vampire.

2. What are the main themes of the book?

MC: The book explores themes of love, friendship, and identity. It also deals with the challenges of growing up and becoming an adult.

3. How did you create the character of Janet S. Tate?

MC: Janet is a strong and independent young woman who is trying to find her place in the world. I wanted to create a character that readers could relate to and root for.

4. What kind of research did you do for the book?

MC: I did a lot of research on vampires, both in fiction and in real life. I also read up on the history of New York City, where the book is set.

5. What advice would you give to aspiring young writers?

MC: Don't be afraid to write what you're passionate about. And don't give up on your dreams, even when things get tough.
