Sentiment Lost a Whole New Crowd: Two Tijan's Books Plummet in Ratings

In a surprising turn of events, two books by popular author Tijan, "Lost in the Shadows" and "Falling for the Forbidden," have experienced a significant drop in ratings on Goodreads and Amazon. The decline has sparked questions and speculation among fans and industry insiders alike.

What Led to the Decline?

Several theories have emerged regarding the reasons behind the sudden drop in ratings. Some readers cite a recent change in Tijan's writing style, which they find less engaging than her earlier works. Others point to a shift in the author's target audience, suggesting that her current books may no longer resonate with her established fanbase.

Reader Feedback

Reviews on Goodreads and Amazon reflect a mix of disappointment and frustration among readers. Many express a lack of connection with the characters and plot lines in the two books. Some readers indicate that they were expecting a similar reading experience to Tijan's previous novels, but were met with something entirely different.

Author's Response

Tijan has yet to publicly address the decline in ratings. Her silence has left fans wondering whether she is aware of the backlash and what steps she intends to take. Some speculate that she may be working on a new book that will address the concerns raised by readers.

Impact on Future Works

It remains to be seen whether the negative reviews will have a lasting impact on Tijan's career. Some fans believe that the author may choose to take a break from writing or change her approach to storytelling. Others remain optimistic that she can regain her former popularity with future releases.

Continuing Dialogue

The decline in ratings has opened up a dialogue about reader expectations and the challenges authors face in adapting to changing tastes. Fans of Tijan's previous works are expressing their disappointment, while others are acknowledging the author's right to evolve her writing style. The ongoing discussion highlights the dynamic relationship between authors, readers, and the literary landscape.
