How did globalization affect East Asia? Globalization helped to give legitimacy to ruling regimes across Asia. In particular, rising living standards resulted in populations willing to tolerate governments that were often authoritarian – a phenomenon sometimes described as "performance-based" legitimacy.

What is new economy in globalization? The new economy was seen as a shift from a manufacturing and commodity-based economy to one that used technology to create new products and services at a rate that the traditional manufacturing economy could not match.

Why has East Asia been able to grow its economy and cultural importance so fast since WWII? The main empirical argument that a high rate of investment and a concentration on exporting have caused economic growth is the strong positive correlation between these two variables and the rates of growth found in the East Asian economies.

How did East Asia achieve economic success? While economic and political stability, an export drive, investment in human capital, and an efficient bureaucracy were common features of successful East Asian economies, the first generation of NIEs, with the exception of Hong Kong, had some systematic differences from the second generation of NIEs.

What makes East Asia so globally significant? Housing three of the world's largest economies and most influential nations — China, Japan, and South Korea — as well as Hong Kong, Macau, Mongolia, North Korea, and Taiwan — East Asia is a vital center of gravity in the Asia-Pacific.

How does Asia contribute to the global economy? Once known only for its outsourcing centres and factories, Asian people are now running some of the the biggest global companies. This allows the continent's countries to find more opportunities within the region, rather than having to look outside. This also translates into more intra-regional influence and impact.

How globalization affects the economy? In general, globalization decreases the cost of manufacturing. This means that companies can offer goods at a lower price to consumers. The average cost of goods is a key aspect that contributes to increases in the standard of living. Consumers also have access to a wider variety of goods.

What is the concept of the new economy? The term “new economy” refers to industries adapting to changing technology and using it to meet business goals, including productivity, quality, efficiency, customer satisfaction, and profit. It symbolizes the shift from a manufacturing and commodity-based economy to a technology-enabled and service-based economy.

What are the three benefits of the new economy? better organisation of production, economies of scale, technological change and managerial innovation.

Why has East Asia experienced rapid Urbanisation? Industrialization and Urbanization in East Asia Others argue that it is due to the many ways in which East Asian states facilitated the transition from agrarian to industrial society and intervened in most aspects of national economy development planning.

What are the economic systems in East Asia and how are they different? East Asia is a mix of different economies. China has a socialist economy, Japan and Taiwan have free market economies, while South Korea has a mixed economy.

What were some of the causes of economic decline in East Asia? Perhaps most of all, the 1997–98 financial crisis revealed the dangers of premature financial liberalization in the absence of established regulatory regimes, the inadequacy of exchange rate regimes, the problems with IMF prescriptions, and the general absence of social safety nets in East Asia.

Which of the following is a reason for East Asia's economic success? Rapid modernisation, and a focus on high technology, have allowed East Asia to register rapid economic growth. The region is home to some of the world's most affluent nations and sees high standards of living.

What best describes the economy of East Asia today? The economy of East Asia is one of the most successful regional economies of the world. The changes that turned the area into the economic power began with the Meiji Restoration in the late 19th century, when Japan rapidly transformed into the only industrial power outside Europe and the United States.

Which country has the strongest economy in East Asia? China has the strongest economy followed by Malaysia and Vietnam in East Asia. (ASEAN economy is strongly intertwined with Northeast Asian countries and should be better classified as part of East Asia bloc).

What was East Asia influenced by? It is a region that is heavily influenced by Chinese culture. Japan's culture is substantially derived from Tang Dynasty China. Korea's was strongly influenced by China's art and religion. Same holds true for Southeast Asia, Vietnam in particular.

How has climate change affected East Asia? Southeast Asia is one of the most vulnerable regions to climate change, and faces rising sea levels, heat waves, floods and droughts, and increasingly intense and unpredictable weather events.

What are some of the challenges facing East Asia? Population growth and economic development contribute to many environmental problems in Asia. These include pressure on land, habitat destruction and loss of biodiversity, water scarcity and water pollution, air pollution, and global warming and climate change.

How does trade and transportation globalization impact the development of East Asia? The rise of both global and regional value chains has been an important driver of productivity growth for developing East Asian countries. The reason is that GVCs lead to technology spillovers, learning externalities, better inputs and a more efficient international division of labor.
