Speak: A Conversation with Laurie Halse Anderson

Laurie Halse Anderson, the renowned author of the groundbreaking novel "Speak," is known for her fearless exploration of difficult subjects that affect young people. In this interview, Anderson shares insights into her writing process, the impact of "Speak," and the importance of giving voice to survivors.

Q: What inspired you to write "Speak"?

A: I was deeply affected by the story of a young girl who had been raped. I realized that there was a lack of literature addressing the trauma of sexual assault in a way that was accessible to young people. I wanted to create a book that would help survivors feel seen and understood.

Q: How did you approach the sensitive topic of sexual assault in a way that was appropriate for a young audience?

A: I used metaphors and symbolism to convey the protagonist's experiences without being overly graphic. I also focused on the emotional and psychological impact of the assault, rather than just the physical act itself. I wanted to create a space where readers could process their own experiences or connect with the main character.

Q: What has been the impact of "Speak" since its release?

A: "Speak" has had a profound impact on countless young people and educators. It has been credited with starting important conversations about sexual assault and providing support to survivors. It has also been adopted by schools as a resource for addressing these issues.

Q: What do you hope readers take away from "Speak"?

---

A: I hope readers realize that they are not alone and that speaking out about trauma can be empowering. I want them to feel supported and encouraged to seek help if they need it. I also hope that "Speak" creates a more open and understanding dialogue about sexual violence.

Q: What advice do you have for young people who have experienced trauma?

A: Trust your instincts and seek help from a trusted adult, therapist, or friend. Remember that you are not responsible for what happened to you and that you deserve to be heard and respected. You are not alone, and there are people who care about you and want to support you.
