Is it Kakebo or Kakeibo? Kakeibo, or (alternately spelled) kakebo, translates to "household family ledger," according to Sarah Harvey, the author of, Kaizen: The Japanese Method for Transforming Habits One Step at a Time.

What is Kakebo? Kakeibo is a century-old Japanese technique for budgeting that could change your financial life and help you take charge of your finances. It incorporates mindfulness into spending decisions and offers a simple, no-nonsense way to get your finances under control.

What is the $5.34 rule? Before you buy something you don't really need, ask yourself if it's worth the same as a typical Japanese lunch, which costs about $5.34.” This puts your spending in perspective and helps you tell the difference between short-term wants and actual needs.

How to use a Kakeibo? The kakeibo budgeting method is fairly simple. All someone has to do is write down all of the money they have coming in each month (income) and, as they spend it, record where it goes. This method involves tracking spending in four different spending categories: general, wants, culture, and unexpected extras.

Who invented Kakeibo? History. Kakeibo was developed by the Japanese journalist Motoko Hani who published the first Kakeibo in a women's magazine in 1904.

The Art of Urban Sketching: Drawing on Location Around the World with Gabriel Campanario

Gabriel Campanario, a renowned urban sketcher, has captured the essence of cities around the world through his captivating drawings. Join us for an interview with Campanario as he reveals the secrets and techniques behind his evocative works of art.

1. What is the essence of urban sketching?

Gabriel Campanario: Urban sketching is an immersive experience that allows you to connect with the environment and observe it through the lens of an artist. It involves capturing the unique character and atmosphere of cities, from their bustling streets to their hidden corners.

2. What are the challenges and rewards of sketching on location?

GC: Sketching on location presents challenges such as changing light, unpredictable weather, and crowds. However, these obstacles also offer opportunities to hone your observation skills and experiment with different approaches. The reward of capturing a moment in time and sharing it with others is unparalleled.

3. How do you approach the process of sketching a city?

GC: I start by observing the overall composition and identifying focal points. I then break down the scene into smaller elements, focusing on angles, perspective, and relationships between objects. I use a loose and fluid style, allowing the energy of the city to flow into my drawings.

4. What are your top tips for aspiring urban sketchers?

GC: Practice regularly to improve your hand-eye coordination and observation skills. Experiment with different drawing techniques and materials to find what suits you best. Don't be afraid of failure; it's part of the creative process. And most importantly, have fun and enjoy the journey.

5. What are your favorite cities to sketch?

GC: Each city has its own unique charm, but I particularly enjoy sketching in historic and vibrant places like Rome, Paris, and Istanbul. The rich architecture, lively streets, and cultural diversity provide endless inspiration.
