- Lack of leadership: Without strong leadership, renewal efforts can stall or fail.
- Resistance to change: Employees may be reluctant to embrace new ways of working or fear job loss.
- Short-term pressures: Companies may prioritize short-term profits over long-term renewal.

- Creating a sense of ownership: Employees must feel invested in the renewal process.
- Effective communication: Clear and regular communication is crucial to manage expectations and build support.
- Learning from mistakes: Organizations must be willing to adapt and adjust their plans as they learn.
- Sustaining the effort: Renewal is an ongoing process, not a one-time event.

The authors argue that managers play a critical role in driving corporate renewal. They must:

- Embrace change as an opportunity: View renewal not as a threat but as a chance for growth and improvement.
- Lead by example: Demonstrate the courage and commitment necessary to guide employees through the change process.
- Create a supportive environment: Foster a culture of innovation, experimentation, and continuous learning.
