Syllabus AP Human Geography: David Palmer

Introduction David Palmer is a renowned author and educator specializing in human geography. His contributions to the field have significantly shaped the Advanced Placement (AP) Human Geography syllabus, which provides guidelines for high school students exploring the subject.

Important Concepts Covered in the Syllabus The AP Human Geography syllabus encompasses a wide range of concepts related to human interactions with the environment, such as:

- The nature of geography and its relationship to other disciplines
- The spatial distribution of human populations
- Processes and patterns of economic development
- Cultural diversity and its implications for social and political organization
- Environmental challenges and their impact on human societies

Key Questions in the Syllabus The syllabus presents key questions that guide students' inquiry into human geography. These questions delve into the core concepts of the subject:

- How do geographic factors influence human societies?
- How do humans modify and adapt to their environment?
- What are the processes and patterns of cultural change?

- How do economic activities shape human societies?
- What are the challenges facing human societies in the 21st century?

Suggested Time Allocation The syllabus provides a suggested time allocation for each unit, ensuring that students cover all essential topics. The allocation is as follows:

- Unit 1: Introduction to Human Geography (10%)
- Unit 2: Population Geography (20%)
- Unit 3: Cultural Geography (30%)
- Unit 4: Political Geography (15%)
- Unit 5: Economic Geography (20%)
- Unit 6: Urban Geography (5%)

Assessment Format The AP Human Geography exam consists of two sections:

- Multiple-choice section (75%): Assesses students' understanding of key concepts and their ability to apply them to real-world situations.
- Free-response section (25%): Requires students to demonstrate their analytical and writing skills by constructing coherent and well-supported essays.
