Rheology Modifiers: A Comprehensive Guide**

What is Rheology?

Rheology is the study of the flow and deformation of matter. In the context of pharmacy and plastics, rheology is concerned with the manipulation of the physical properties of liquids and solids.

Rheology Modifiers

Rheology modifiers are substances that can alter the rheological properties of a material. They can be used to control viscosity, yield strength, flowability, and other properties. Common rheology modifier polymers include:

- Aculyn 38 (INCI name: Ammonium Acryloyldimethyltaurate/VP Copolymer)
- Aculyn 60 (INCI name: Caprylic/Capric Triglyceride)
- Carbopol (INCI name: Carbomer)

INCI Names for Ingredients

The International Nomenclature of Cosmetic Ingredients (INCI) is a standardized system for naming ingredients in cosmetics and personal care products. It is used to ensure that consumers can easily identify the ingredients in these products. The INCI names for the ingredients mentioned in this article are:

- Aculyn 38: Ammonium Acryloyldimethyltaurate/VP Copolymer

- Aculyn 60: Caprylic/Capric Triglyceride
- Carbopol: Carbomer
- Dow Corning 193: Silicone-1411
- Dow Corning 200: Polydimethylsiloxane
- Dowicil 200: Phenoxyethanol (and) Methylparaben (and) Propylparaben (and) Butylparaben (and) Ethylparaben
- Cetareth 20: Polysorbate 20

Molykote vs. Dow Corning

Molykote and Dow Corning are two different brands of specialty chemicals used in various industries. While they may share some similarities in their product offerings, they are not the same company.

Additional Information

- Acrylate copolymer is another name for polyacrylate, which is a type of acrylic polymer.
- Dow Corning 732 is a silicone-based elastomer used in sealant and adhesive applications.
- Silicone 1411 is a type of silicone oil used in cosmetic and personal care products.
