Special Forces Soldiers: Part I - Director's Cut (Aleksandr Voinov)

This gripping documentary takes viewers deep into the world of elite special forces soldiers and presents an exclusive glimpse into their extraordinary training and operations. Here's an interview with filmmaker Aleksandr Voinov, who discusses the making of the film.

Q: What inspired you to create this film?

A: "I've always been fascinated by the extraordinary abilities and sacrifices of special forces soldiers. I wanted to craft a film that would truly capture their unique perspectives and showcase the challenges they face."

Q: How did you gain access to these elite units?

A: "It took years of negotiations and countless meetings with military and government officials. I was fortunate to secure unprecedented access to multiple special forces units around the world, including the U.S. Navy SEALs, UK Special Air Service (SAS), and Russian Spetsnaz."

Q: What were the biggest challenges during production?

A: "The secrecy surrounding these units posed a significant challenge. We had to adhere to strict guidelines and navigate a complex web of protocols to ensure the safety of both the soldiers and the project as a whole. Additionally, the extreme environments and demanding operations tested the limits of our crew."

Q: What do you hope viewers will take away from the film?

A: "I hope the film will foster a deeper understanding of the sacrifices and resilience of special forces soldiers. It's a tribute to their unwavering commitment, extraordinary skills, and the vital role they play in protecting our nations."

Q: Any exclusive behind-the-scenes moments you can share?

A: "During one of our shoots, we witnessed a nighttime HALO (High Altitude, Low Opening) jump from a C-130 aircraft. The sheer precision and coordination involved was astounding. It was an unforgettable experience that truly showcased the exceptional abilities of these elite warriors."
