Ships in the Fog Math Problem: Answers Demystified

Problem:

Two ships, A and B, are sailing towards each other in a thick fog. Ship A travels at a speed of 40 mph, while Ship B travels at a speed of 20 mph. When the ships are 100 miles apart, Ship A sees Ship B through the fog and immediately turns on its searchlight. This light travels at the speed of light (186,000 miles per second).

Question:

At what distance between the ships will the light from Ship A reach Ship B?

Answer:

1. Calculate the relative speed of the ships:

Relative speed = Speed of Ship A + Speed of Ship B
Relative speed = 40 mph + 20 mph
Relative speed = 60 mph

2. Convert relative speed to miles per hour to miles per second:

Relative speed = 60 mph x (1 hour / 60 minutes) x (1 minute / 60 seconds)
Relative speed = 1 mph / second

3. Convert distance between ships to miles to miles per second:

Distance = 100 miles x (1 second / 186,000 miles)
Distance = 1 / 1860 miles per second

4. Use the formula: Time = Distance / Speed:

Time = Distance / Relative speed
Time = (1 / 1860) miles per second / (1 mph / second)
Time = 1/1860 second

5. Convert time from seconds to miles:

Time = (1 / 1860) second x (186,000 miles per second)
Time = 100 miles

Therefore, the light from Ship A will reach Ship B when the ships are still 100 miles apart.
