4. (a)
5. (b)

Explanation

- The third law of thermodynamics is not a law of thermodynamics in the strict sense of the word. It is a postulate that states that the entropy of a perfect crystal at absolute zero is zero.
- The first law of thermodynamics is a fundamental law of physics that has been tested and verified countless times.

- A thermodynamic system is a collection of matter that is separated from its surroundings by a real or imaginary boundary.
- The second law of thermodynamics is a fundamental law of physics that has important implications for the direction of natural processes.
- A reversible process is one that can be reversed without any change in the entropy of the system or its surroundings.

How did the Romans view the empire? The Romans were immensely proud of their empire. Through the Pax Romana, they believed that they were bringing the light of civilization to the darkest corners of Europe and Asia.

How did the Roman civilization become an empire? A period of unrest and civil wars in the 1st century bce marked the transition of Rome from a republic to an empire. This period encompassed the career of Julius Caesar, who eventually took full power over Rome as its dictator.

How did the Romans govern their empire? The Roman Empire dramatically shifted power away from representative democracy to centralized imperial authority, with the emperor holding the most power. For example, under Augustus's reign, emperors gained the ability to introduce and veto laws, as well as command the army.

Who declared the Roman Empire? The Roman Empire was founded when Augustus Caesar proclaimed himself the first emperor of Rome in 31 BC and came to an end with the fall of Constantinople in 1453.

How was the Roman Empire chosen? The first answer is simple: hereditary rule. For most of this period, emperors were not chosen on the basis of their ability or honesty, but simply because they were born in the right family. For every great leader, such as Augustus, there was a tyrant like Caligula.

How did the Roman Empire actually fall? 476 AD - Romulus Augustulus, the last emperor of Rome, was deposed in 476 AD when a Germanic warlord from an unknown tribe invaded Italy and took control of the peninsula. This act marked the end of the Western Roman Empire. Odoacer ruled as king of Italy between 476 and 493.

What made the Roman Empire so great? The military was one of the key reasons for Rome's success. The Roman army was highly trained and disciplined, growing in reputation as the best army in the world. With their success in war, the empire was able to expand its control over 3 separate continents including Asia, Africa, and most of Europe.

What existed before the Roman Empire? Before the glory of Rome, the Etruscans ruled much of what is now Italy. Some of Rome's first kings were from Etruria, and Etruscans may have founded the city-state that would dominate much of the known world for centuries.

How did the Roman Empire become so advanced? The Romans achieved high levels of technology in large part because they borrowed technologies from the Greeks, Etruscans, Celts, and others. With limited sources of power, the Romans managed to build impressive structures, some of which survive to this day.

What are 5 interesting facts about the Roman Empire?

How did the Romans unify their empire? Rome was able to gain its empire in large part by extending some form of citizenship to many of the people it conquered. Military expansion drove economic development, bringing enslaved people and loot back to Rome, which in turn transformed the city of Rome and Roman culture.

What did the Roman Empire call itself? The Romans had several words to refer to their empire and its government, but the most commonly used term was "Imperium Romanum" which translates to "Roman Empire" in English. Imperium is derived from the Latin word "imperator" which means "commander" or "ruler".

How did Rome turn into an empire? Though the Roman Republic stood for several centuries, tensions within the government began to tear it apart. Civil wars started between groups with different loyalties, which brought about the transformation of the republic into an empire.

Who was the emperor when Jesus died? Jesus Christ of Nazareth was born during the reign of the first official Roman emperor, Augustus, and was crucified under the reign of the second emperor, Tiberius.

Who was the first true Roman Empire? Augustus (also known as Octavian) was the first emperor of ancient Rome. Augustus came to power after the assassination of Julius Caesar in 44 BCE. In 27 BCE Augustus “restored” the republic of Rome, though he himself retained all real power as the princeps, or “first citizen,” of Rome.

How did the Romans view their emperors? The Romans did not worship the emperor himself, but the Emperor's Genius. The principles of the Roman religion, didn't even ever conceived the concept of man-god. So all the emperors had same respect as it was divine but they were not considered divine at all.

What were the Roman Empire beliefs? The Romans believed in mythological gods, and creatures. Later on they believed in Christianity or the idea of a monotheistic religion. Romans had a polytheistic religion until 509 BC- 391 AD. And in 391 AD until 476 AD, Christianity rose.

How would the Roman Empire be described? The Roman Empire ruled the Mediterranean and much of Europe, Western Asia and North Africa. The Romans conquered most of this during the Republic, and it was ruled by emperors following Octavian's assumption of effective sole rule in 27 BC.

Did the Romans consider themselves an empire? Most of these areas had city states. Tribes. There was hardly any permanent large territorial integrity with what we would call a “nation”. The Romans had several words to refer to their empire and its government, but the most commonly used term was "Imperium Romanum" which translates to "Roman Empire" in English.
