hazards that may exist in your work area. As hazards are identified, they must be EVALUATED.

How can heat stress be managed at work? Check workers who are most at risk to heat stress due to the nature of their job or because of an illness, condition or medication. Provide cool water and encourage workers to drink every 15-20 minutes – thirsty or not – during hot weather. Avoid caffeine and alcohol.

What should you give someone who is suffering from heat stress? Immerse hands and feet in cold water, cool by fanning and moisten the skin, if possible. If fully alert and responsive, give them frequent small drinks of water. If muscle cramps occur, gently stretch the affected muscles to ease pain.

What are the first signs of heat exhaustion?

What PPE is needed for heat stress? Personal Protective Equipment However, in some limited situations, special cooling devices can protect workers in hot environments: Insulated suits. Reflective clothing. Infrared reflecting face shields.

What are heat safety tips for employees? Provide cool drinking water – encourage workers to drink at least one cup every 20 minutes, even if they are not thirsty. Rest breaks — allow workers time to recover from heat in a shady or cool location. Dress for the heat — have workers wear a hat and light-colored, loose- fitting, breathable clothing if possible.

What are the extra measures to protect employees from extreme heat?

What is heat stress OSHA? Workers who are exposed to extreme heat or work in hot environments may be at risk of heat stress. Exposure to extreme heat can result in occupational illnesses and injuries. Heat stress can result in heat stroke, heat exhaustion, heat cramps, or heat rashes.

What is the most serious form of heat stress? Heat stroke is the most serious heat-related illness. It occurs when the body can no longer control its temperature: the body's temperature rises rapidly, the sweating mechanism fails, and the body is unable to cool down.

How to treat heat exhaustion at work? Move the person out of the heat and into a shady or air-conditioned place. Lay the person down and raise the legs and feet slightly. Remove tight or heavy clothing. Have the person sip chilled water, a sports drink containing electrolytes or another nonalcoholic beverage without caffeine.

How can workers be protected from heat stress? Encourage workers to wear clothing that is breathable, light-colored, and loose-fitting. Cotton clothing can be soaked in water to aid cooling. Be aware that protective clothing or personal protective equipment may increase the risk of heat stress.

What are three duties employers have in relation to protecting employees from heat stress? Heat Standards in Specific States The following states have standards for heat exposure: California. California's Heat Illness Prevention Standard requires employers to provide training, water, shade, and planning. A temperature of 80°F triggers the requirements.

What is the most important mechanism to combat heat stress? Circulating air is the most highly effective, as well as the most complicated, personal cooling system. By directing compressed air around the body from a supplied air system, both evaporative and convective cooling are improved.
