Q: What are the different types of towing systems?

A: There are three main types of towing systems:

- Rigid tow: The towline is directly connected to the towed object, resulting in a rigid connection.
- Semi-rigid tow: A short, heavy line is connected between the towboat and the main towline, creating a semi-flexible connection.
- Flexible tow: The towline is long and flexible, allowing the towed object to move freely behind the towboat.

Q: What factors are considered when selecting a towline?

A: The following factors should be considered:

- Strength and elasticity of the line
- Length and diameter of the line
- Towboat and towed object characteristics
