What is the biofloc technology? Biofloc technology (BT) is defined as 'the use of aggregates of bacteria, algae, or protozoa, held together in a matrix along with particulate organic matter for the purpose of improving water quality, waste treatment and disease prevention in intensive aquaculture systems'.

Who is the father of biofloc technology? Yoram Avnimelech is a prominent player in creating biofloc technology and its involvement in creating and popularizing it. He is the “Father of Biofloc” and a professor emeritus at the Technion-Israel Institute of Technology.

What are the disadvantages of biofloc technology?

Does biofloc need sunlight? It is a protein rich live feed formed as a result of conversion of unused feed and excreta into a natural food in a culture system on exposure to sunlight and vigorous aeration.

What is biofloc alternative? A patented shrimp production system designed for use in in recirculating aquaculture systems (RAS) may increase shrimp survival rates compared to the use of bioflocs, according to a new report.

Which bacteria is used in biofloc? Results: Out of 125 bacterial isolates, nine species of bacteria from biofloc were identified successfully. Those bacteria species were identified as Halomonas venusta, H. aquamarina, Vibrio parahaemolyticus, Bacillus infantis, B.

What is the mortality in biofloc? The highest mortality was in shrimp reared in biofloc but challenged in clear water (73.3 %; P 0.01). The results demonstrate that biofloc can protect whiteleg shrimp from VPAHPND and that the management of biofloc in aquaculture ponds can assist in controlling bacterial infections.
