What was the baby boom and why did it happen? baby boom, in the U.S., the increase in the birth rate between 1946 and 1964; also, the generation born in the U.S. during that period. The hardships and uncertainties of the Great Depression and World War II led many couples to delay marriage and many married couples to delay having children.

What is the baby boom phenomenon? The term "baby boom" is often used to refer specifically to the post–World War II (1946–1964) baby boom in the United States and Europe. In the US the number of annual births exceeded 2 per 100 women (or approximately 1% of the total population size). An estimated 78.3 million Americans were born during this period.

Was the baby boom before or after the Great Depression? That said, the surge in births in the U.S. was likely in part due to the recovery of birth rates after the Great Depression and World War II and to the extended economic expansion that followed the war.

What is the meaning of the baby boom celebration? /ˈbeɪ ˈbʊm/ The baby boom was the period after World War II in the United States when more babies than usual were born. A baby boom can refer to any increase in the population, but it usually refers to the time just after World War II when the population went through the roof in the United States.

What stopped the baby boom? Following this period, the next generation had a greater desire for material objects, however, an economic slowdown in the United States made jobs harder to acquire. This resulted in lower fertility rates causing the Baby Bust.

What drove the baby boom? Most historians say that the baby boomer phenomenon likely involved a combination of factors: people wanting to start the families that they'd put off during World War II and the Great Depression and a sense of confidence that the coming era would be peaceful and prosperous.

What are 3 effects of the baby boom? During the 1960-70's schools, colleges, and universities were built to accommodate the boom and are now excessive for the baby bust cohort. Unemployment and crime rates rose and fell with the passing of the boom babies through late adolescence and early adulthood. In the 1980's, boom babies will be aged 20-30.
