30-Second Psychology: Unraveling 50 Thought-Provoking Theories in Half a Minute

Christian Jarrett, a renowned psychologist and author, delves into the depths of human behavior with his fascinating book, "30-Second Psychology." In this thought-provoking volume, Jarrett succinctly explains 50 of the most influential psychological theories, each in just 30 seconds.

1. Question: What is the Freudian Interpretation of Dreams? Answer: Dreams are a window into our unconscious conflicts and desires, revealing repressed emotions and motivations.

2. Question: Explain the James-Lange Theory of Emotion. Answer: Our emotions are not caused by external events, but rather by our physiological responses to them. Feeling a physical reaction, such as shaking, triggers the associated emotion, such as fear.

3. Question: What is the Cognitive Dissonance Theory? Answer: When our beliefs and actions conflict, we experience discomfort. To reduce this dissonance, we either change our behavior or find ways to justify our actions, even if they are irrational.

4. Question: Describe the Attachment Theory. Answer: Our early relationships with our caregivers shape our emotional and social development, determining our ability to form healthy attachments later in life. Secure attachments foster trust and independence, while insecure attachments can lead to anxiety and relationship difficulties.

5. Question: What is the Milgram Obedience Experiment? Answer: Stanley Milgram's experiment demonstrated the power of authority. Participants were instructed to administer increasingly painful electric shocks to another person, even when they expressed distress. This study highlighted the role of obedience and situational factors in unethical behavior.
